

I have been a subscriber to XM radio since December 2003 and love the benefits of the radio. I drive 50 miles each way to work daily and my xm radio keeps me up to date on all matters including weather and traffic. Due to my drive there are no local stations that pick up in the area and the only source of radio I have is my xm radio. I feel that if I pay my hard earned money to pay for this service it should not be affected by any regulations that local stations or the FCC feel need to be enforced. Being the FCC and the influence you have, maybe you should take some time to look at what you are allowing to be aired on national tv and not worry about the traffic and weather. I had much rather hear the traffic and weather than see the demented tv shows that are now being aired on prime time television. I don't feel that the weather or traffic can even match the issues the FCC needs to deal with in this country. Leave our xm radio's in peace and take care of the more important issues in this country.
